ADVOCACY COUNCIL

The Advocacy Council at Pathways to Opportunity is a dynamic group comprising 10 participants who actively engage in the democratic process. Through a structured election process, including debates, campaign weeks, and speeches, participants exercise their leadership skills while vying for council positions. Facilitated in collaboration with the Lee County Elections Office, the council members experience real-world voting procedures, ensuring they gain practical knowledge and skills. Once elected, the council plays a pivotal role in decision-making within the program, representing the voices and interests of their peers.
